

ADCL - PROOFREADING

The ADC - PROOFREADING is a tool that allows to do a partial check on different topics on the AD STATUS excel file, and returns if there is any possible mistake in it.

How to use it

In order to use this tool, first is necessary to select the AD STATUS excel file to proofread on the input field (red circle). Then, once is uploaded correctly, the dropdown (blue circle) list should get active, allowing the user to select the excel sheet to check. Finally, whit these 2 fields filled, the PROOFREADING VALIDATION button will get active, and by clicking it, the result will be printed on the screen, below the selection section.

The screenshot shows a web interface titled "ADCL - PROOFREADING". It contains two input fields: a file selection field labeled "Select the excel file:" with a "Browse..." button and "No file selected." text, and a dropdown menu labeled "Select the sheet:" with "-- select an option --" as the selected value. Below these fields is a blue button labeled "PROOFREADING VALIDATION".

The output of this tool can contain between 4 and 0 different errors. These 4 items the tool can detect are:

- The MSN in remarks doesn't match.
- The engine S/N or APU P/N in remarks doesn't match.
- There should be "whichever/which occurs first/last" in remarks column.
- The value of the AD CLOSED column may be incorrect.

If some mistake is found, the result will look like the next picture.

Result of proof-reading for MSN 06004 and excel tab AIRFRAME

The number between parenthesis "()" refers to the excel row where the specific error is found.

The MSN in remarks doesn't match:

(664)

There should be "whichever/which occurs first/last" in remarks column:

(892)

The value of the AD CLOSED column may be incorrect:

(592) (704/705/706)

If no error is detected, the output will look like the next image.
